

HAVE OIL PICTURES OF FLIGHT

object Was to Obtain Every Record of Climatic Conditions.

By W. R. HARGRAVES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 28.—The association of art with the business of flying was revealed in a striking manner during the recent flight of three United States Navy seaplanes across the Atlantic. Although official government motion-picture men were sent to the Azores on the tender Melville to perpetuate on celluloid the scenes attendant upon the flight, government officials determined to have preserved every detail, so sent a painter in oils.

The object of this was to have every possible record of climatic conditions, atmospheric effects and cloud and sea views faithfully portrayed in color. These conditions, it is said, cannot be as accurately depicted by cinematographers as in oils.

Lieutenant C. E. Rutman, U. S. N., was the artist chosen for this work. His paintings of aerial activity on the war fronts in Europe recently were exhibited at the Aeronautical Exposition at Atlantic City and won generous praise for their fidelity and bizarre action. Rutman is a practical aviator, having flown for several years and been instructor in aviation at one of the largest aviation schools. Thus his paintings of airplanes and seaplanes are true in detail in whatever position or condition a plane in his pictures may be.

Thirteen paintings were brought back by him on the Melville, and will be reproduced by the Navy Department for distribution with a view of increasing the already intense interest in aviation.

Rutman's pictures show remarkable storm cloud and sea effects in some instances, and in others brilliant scenes of the picturesque harbor of Ponta Delgada, Azores, with the colorful glint of the semi-tropical sun on the bay attract immediate attention.

His scenes are of the NC-4 safely flying into the harbor; of the NC-3, as she crept, battered and torn by seas, in behind the breakwater of the city, with destroyers and speed boats rushing out to proffer the aid that was refused. He also shows in life-like manner a view of the NC-3 as she was first seen, on the eventful afternoon of her recovery, with waves dashing over her hull and wings, and one of the crew, legs entwined in struts, signalling in semaphore: "We don't need any aid. We are coming in under our own power."

Other effective pictures are of the transfer of the crew from the plane to small boats when the harbor was reached; of the cheering, flag-waving crowds swarming the seawall when the plans came up the bay; of a plane speeding through the night by the light of the moon, and another of the NC-3, drifting backward with the crew, unable to turn around in their tiny cockpits, grotesquely silhouetted in their monkey suits, against the storm-swept sea.

forms were thundering against grievances in all parts of the world.

At every platform the crowds would suddenly break out singing "The Red Flag," which has the music of "Maryland, My Maryland," and words that tell of "the wave of red" running from Moscow to Chicago. No collections were taken at any of the meetings but socialist and anarchist literature was freely sold in the crowd. At 5 o'clock, at the sound of a bugle, the chairman of each wagon platform meeting proposed the resolution of the day, calling on the government to abolish conscription, military training in the schools, the German blockade, the Russian expeditionary force, the Defense of the Realm Act, the Aliens Restriction Act, and to provide adequate housing, means of transit, amnesty to political and military prisoners, endowment of motherhood, and equal pay for men and women.

COURT TO LAST UNTIL JULY 15

Number of Cases on Hand Will Require Lengthy Session.

The June term of Circuit Court will not end before July 15.

The term was originally set to end Saturday, July 5, but owing to the number of cases yet to be tried and business to be disposed of, it will require about two weeks of extra time before it closes. Cases have already been reset as late as July 15, and it is probable that before that time others will have to be reset for a later date than that or be carried over until the fall term.

"BOLSHEVISM ON TRIAL"

By THOS. DIXON, AUTHOR OF "BIRTH OF A NATION"

The timeliest picture ever screened

Not a propaganda picture, but a thrilling drama with a delightful love story running throughout it--the kind of a picture that leaves you something to think about.

Norman Worth saw the girl he loved as the desire of Bolshevik lust—and his eyes were opened!

Bolshevism with its hate, greed and lust crept over the island and blighted everything it touched.

Not a war picture, but the story of the ruthlessness and treachery of the demon, Bolshevism, with all the scenes laid on this side of the Atlantic Ocean.
